

Head of Finance Asia-Pacific

Would you like to join an ambitious international finance function in the renewable energy sector?

Join us and become Head of Finance Asia-Pacific in a fast-growth, agile team located in Taipei, Taiwan, where you'll oversee all finance aspects and act as a sparring partner to the Asia-Pacific General Manager. You'll be part of an integrated finance organisation in a functional set-up where some responsibility is distributed to centralised specialist departments. Your role will be to ensure national compliance in cooperation with the functional finance departments, and you'll be the local finance contact person in the Taiwan Asia-Pacific hub.

You'll report to the Asia Pacific General Manager and to the head of Business Finance, Wind Power, who is in Denmark.

Your key tasks will be to

- oversee finance operations, business planning and risk management in APAC and ensure close coordination with finance functions and shared functions in Europe
- steer commercial support to regional partnerships and new business initiatives
- ensure visible and service-minded finance support to the Country Manager and the local team
- ensure compliance with national legislation within accounting and tax.

Your competences include that you

- have strong internationally recognisable commercial finance qualification as well as solid technical understanding and relevant experience within the offshore wind industry
- come from a comparable global conglomerate business and have gained hands-on management experience in medium to large-scale finance operations
- have a hands-on attitude to building a small organisation's business platform and strategically address accounting, reporting and tax matters
- have leadership and team management experience from large, complex infrastructure projects, preferably from a strong matrix organisation, and you have business insights and understand the key drivers and levers that influence business performance
- speak and write English fluently as we operate in an international environment and cooperate closely with our colleagues abroad; also, you're a native Chinese speaker.

Furthermore, you're a strong leader of managers and capable of supporting and developing your team. You're a strong communicator and excellent at explaining complex matters in a simple way. You can manage change and are constantly looking to challenge the norms to do things better. You can handle numerous tasks simultaneously without losing perspective, and you thrive in a multi-cultural organisation.
